Education at our November 14th gathering!

A WEALTH of knowledge.

We are planning a roundtable discussion with YOU as our experts. You live with your bulldogs daily; how about sharing your knowledge and experiences with others?

No Bull. Just fun

From Nose to Tail

This section is intended for questions and answers (as well as opinions) about what has worked best in your house for things from nose wrinkles to tear stains to tail pockets. Keep in mind this is not veterinary advice and what works for one bulldog may not work for the next.

My bully has dandruff and he's never had it before. Any suggestions or thoughts?

When we have experinced dandruff we have added fish oil capsules to the dog's diets. They need essential fatty acids in their diets and in the winter we find our dogs need even more. Consult your veterinarian or a nutrition counselor for doseage. -Karen

Did you recently try a different shampoo? Maybe it didn't rinse properly after your bully's bath.

We had a Springer many years ago who had TERRIBLE dander issues. She was a hyper nervous dog and when under stress we watched her dander rise through her coat. She was just a nervous dog. Perhaps there is some new stress in your bully's life?

Did you change your dog's diet?

The house is too dry, the dog isn't getting enough skin oils in it's food or the dog has allergies developing.

Our Bully has dandruff and we bathe him in Hypo-allergenic Oatmeal Shampoo which soothes his itchy skin. We also rub in Resicort (Cortesone) and spritz with an oatmeal spray occasionally and use Fish oil in food to maintain. It seems to work OK but I am open to other ideas! Look forward to hearing them! --Bill Fox, Deb Brim, Gizzy, and Maddox

I give my bulldog 1 T. of Coconut Oil a day and his coat is shiny and beautiful, no dandruff. -Melissa

With your bully having dandruff you could try EFA caps from your vet or trying bathing him in oatmeal shampoo and conditioner. It is getting to the dryer season, maybe it is just that? --Rachel Next months' question: What do you do to protect your bully from Minnesota winters?

The Bulldog Rules of Possession:

1. If I like it, it's mine.
2. If it's in my mouth, it's mine.
3. If I can take it from you, it's mine.
4. If I had it a little while ago, it's mine.
5. If it's mine, it must NEVER appear to be yours in anyway.
6. If it looks just like mine, it is mine.
7. If I saw it first, it's mine.
8. If you are playing with something and you put it down, it automatically becomes mine.

Last month I told you about Charlie, the dog who came from a shelter near the SD border. I am happy to report that Charlie is doing very well in his new home. I spoke with Carrie today and she said she could keep me on the phone all day telling me how wonderful Charlie is. She said he gets along great with whomever he meets, whether human or canine. Carrie said Charlie is there to stay. So, thanks to all of you who helped to support our rescue efforts. It is success stories like Charlie that make it all worth while.

The silent auction at the October Wrinkle Time resulted in almost $190 that was raised for Rescue Bulldogs in Minnesota. Thanks to all of you who bid and donated items. Thanks also to Karen and Chris for donating the profits of the Wrinkle Time t-shirts sold that day as well.

New to rescue is Addie. She is a petite, red and white four year old spayed female. Addie loves people, but other dogs make her anxious. After months of trying to get her to accept the new puppy in the home without success, her owners called us to help find Addie a home more suited to her needs. They were used to low-energy placid male Bulldogs and Addie is not one to sit back and watch the world go by. Because of her anxiety issues with other dogs, Addie needs a calm environment without other dogs in the home or even a dog next door as she reacts strongly whenever she sees one near by. Some retraining with positive reinforcement to lower her anxiety levels should help her, but she may always be insecure around other dogs. Addie needs experienced dog owners who are comfortable being the alpha, so that Addie does not think she gets to run the show and are willing to work with her on a consistent basis to help with her behavioral issues. Addie also has some allergy issues and may need daily medication to help control her itchy skin. She will be transitioned to a grain-free food to see if that helps her.

Addie had surgery yesterday to repair a torn ACL. She also needed surgery on both eyes as she had some mild entropion and distichia (turned in eyelids and extra eyelashes). Addie tore her ACL just chasing a squirrel in the backyard of her foster home. Unfortunately for Addie, the other knee also needs surgery, but the recent injury was more severe, so that knee was repaired first. It is a lucky thing for us that veterinarians Dr. Winsor and Dr. Rasmussen were willing to give us a generous discount for Addie's surgeries, but even so Addie's vet expenses will far exceed her adoption donation. Addie's owners gave our rescue a generous surrender donation, but the average owner usually does not donate much at the time of surrender. If surrendering owners can donate something to help with the expense of finding their dog a home, that is always appreciated but no dog is turned away if they are unable to do so.

About a month ago I was contacted by artist Jessie Marianiello. She is having an art display at the Bulldog Restaurant in Minneapolis and offered to donate some of the proceeds from ticket sales to Bulldog Rescue. Info about the event that Jessie has asked us to share is below and on the next page:

Honestly, I CANNOT wait! I've had an incredible time preparing for this show. From beginning to end, this bunch of Bulldogs have inspired me in a million ways. My most recent series of portraits, BULLDOG, contain more love, grit, grunge, drama and goodness than I can barely contain. These dogs have been a catalyst for artistic evolution, sparking new ways of seeing and painting that I am beyond excited to share and continue exploring.

My friends, we are going to have a PACKED house! And I hope to see you there! This event is free and open to the public. Due to large crowds and limited space, only participating Bulldogs are able to attend. Beg forgiveness from your housebound four-leggeds by bringing them home some treats from our friends at www.boneadventure.com. They will be at the party with doggie beer,

Braggs

Chris and Karen would like to share that their Neapolitan Mastiff, Drew, CH Runestone Druid Of Pantheon, has been invited to the 2010 AKC/Eukanuba National Championship for the THIRD year in a row because he's in the top 25. Their most recent champion, Rubi, CH Pantheon Resounding Rusalka, was also invited because she finished all her points out of the bred-by class.

"What did you say", I said, "I love you". "I love you too"
So what flavor is that thing? Chicken? Beef?
That is the funniest looking bone I've ever seen.
Sure, we got room for 2 in here.
I AM the BEST babysitter!
He's my BIG puppy.
And they call it....puppy love.
Dude, you lost your binky...../ let me help get it...back...into..../ ahhh there you go buddy...
I'll babysit but I am NOT changing the diaper!
How will I change his diaper without thumbs??
Are children good with bulldogs?
Ok, you can share with me.
Shhhh... we're supposed to be taking a nap!
Oh oh - who put Bitter Apple on this?
First I chew and then you chew, now it's your turn.
Got any left over doggy treats hid in here?
Hey, what is that blue thing stuck to your arm? I think I better check it out to make sure it is safe. All is good, enjoy.
That looks good. MMMmms, it seemms to be chewy, now you try and let me know what you think,
I don't know why the kid is so crazy about that, it didn't have much flavor to me.
Can I have a butterfly kiss?
